

Jenny Martin One Dog AND His Cop

Key selling points

- Written by the author of acclaimed poetry collections and non-fiction, this is Jenny Martin's latest gem.
- Fascinating research into the history of dog training and domestication provides a frame for the story of a unique police dog and his career.
- Featuring illuminating archival and modern photographs from Villain's family and handler, as well as the author.

About the book

A heartwarming true story of how Villain, a cuddly German Shepherd puppy, grew into an award-winning police dog.

Answering the frequently asked question about working dogs, 'How do they do it?', this well-researched account of Villain's brave and dedicated service in the Devon and Cornwall Police Dog Unit is a wonderful tribute to an outstanding, and often very funny, member of the force.

Sales proceeds to be donated to Dogs Trust

About the author

Jenny Martin is married with two adult children and three grandchildren, and lives in Cheshire. Born in Lancaster in 1938, she grew up mainly in the Cumbrian mining town of Whitehaven, which knew the sorrows of war and the pits. She became a specialist in a diagnostic branch of medicine, chemical pathology, which includes blood tests such as cholesterol, diabetes management and thyroid disorders. Since 2008 she has been a member of Bollington Library Writing Group run by author Nik Perring.
